The crumbling railing of this bridge, which spans the railroad tracks on Ill. 26 just at the south edge of Dixon, is being held together by metal braces. The picture below shows a closeup of the braces.

A Department of Transportation spokesman was able to furnish little information on the bridge. The spokesman said he assumed the railroad ordered the braces installed on the bridge railing.

The bridge carries heavy vehicular traffic southward out of Dixon. Just beyond it is the Illinois Tollway and the tollway industrial park. (Telegraph Photos)

Betty Ford's 'instant CB radio license' triggers complaints

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Communications Commission officials say they're being flooded with complaints because First Lady Betty Ford got an immediate response on her request for a temporary citizens band radio license while thousands of other Americans have to wait for weeks to get one.

"Our field offices have been flooded with complaints," said James C. McKinney, who directs the FCC teams that enforce commission rules. However, McKinney said he did not have specific numbers on the complaints received.

He said his field offices are telling people who complain that it's not unusual for someone to get a temporary license in a hurry if it is an emergency.

"It's done quite often," he said.

The emergency in Mrs. Ford's case was that she wanted to use a CB radio to talk with members of a caravan from President Ford's home town, Grand Rapids, Mich., during the Wisconsin presidential primary campaign.

The FCC says it hopes to take some of the sting out of the complaints by announcing plans to make instant temporary licenses for CB operators available to anyone starting Friday.

FCC officials said that under the plan a person will be able to get a license for 60 days when he buys his radio set. He will be able to go on the air as soon as he fills out his application and drops it in the mail. It is expected he'll have a permanent license by the time the 60 days is up.

The new plan for supplying temporary licenses has been in the works for months and was not a result of the complaints about Mrs. Ford, McKinney said.

Earl Stevens of Independence, Kan., editor of the National CB Trucker News, told the FCC on Monday he is receiving letters from many CBers who heard Mrs. Ford's broadcasts in Wisconsin. He said they are complaining that she broke FCC rules by not giving her call sign properly, talking more than five minutes and using the CB band to solicit votes for her husband.

Mrs. Ford's press secretary, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, called the complaints "erroneous." She said Mrs. Ford probably talked no more than two minutes and did use her call sign.

But Stevens said, "We're going to fight this thing. We don't want the politicians moving in and using CB to campaign."

McKinney said there is a rule prohibiting the use of the CB band for "soliciting for the sale of goods and services," but he would have to hear Mrs. Ford's broadcast to determine if that rule was violated.

He said it might be necessary for the FCC to issue some sort of guideline for political use of CB.

CB radio stolen

The theft of a citizen's band radio was reported to Ogle County Sheriff's deputies by Stan Hack Monday.

Hack said his CB radio was removed from a car parked at his Grand Detour residence. The incident is under investigation.

County Board votes to abate tax levy

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Lee County residents will pay less property tax and receive more police protection following action by Lee County Board members this morning.

On a 24-1 vote, members lifted the County General Fund tax levy for the present year because of a $1-million excess brought about by increased interest earned, excess sales-tax receipts and fees earned by county offices.

A $30,000 homeowner will realize a savings of approximately $15 on tax bills mailed this summer as a result of lifting the 10-cent levy per $100 assessed valuation.

Warren P. Faber, District 2, voiced the only dissenting vote. He reasoned the excess funds could better be used for bridge repair in townships where no funds are available.

August "Gus" Fraza, District 3, also expressed concern over the county's responsibility to pay for programs now being funded through revenue sharing moneys. "What happens if the revenue sharing program ceases—and I understand it might. Where will we get the money to continue these programs?"

Finance Committee Chairman Ernest Norden, District 1, answered Fraza, saying "at least three more checks will be received this year." Another Finance Committee member, Donald Burke, District 3, reasoned the excess funds have accumulated without revenue sharing funds.

Burke cited neighboring Whiteside County which had a $57,000 balance in its general fund "and we've got over a million."

The lifting of the tax levy applies only to this year's tax bills.

Sheriff Ray Nehring got approval for hiring two additional deputies but the request met with some heated debate. The Executive Committee recommended hiring of the deputies after the sheriff made a plea for more help. "I've got nine road deputies now and they're working 48 hours each and getting paid for only 40," said Nehring.

The sheriff outlined his department operation, saying the county is divided into four zones. "With one-man squad cars if someone needs help, the nearest back-up car is at least 20 to 30 miles away. We've got 728 miles to cover."

He compared his department with the Dixon Police force which has 23 officers. "If they need help it's only minutes away."

William Kant, District 1, suggested the sheriff look into the CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program for applicants. The sheriff disagreed. "I've had some of their people come down. I wouldn't want to give them a gun and put them on the street. The problem with CETA is you have to take who they send you." Faber interrupted, claiming there is a way to get qualified people through the federal program and said he'd seen it done in La Salle County.

Nehring maintained the CETA people have to be unemployed to be in the program and do not have the needed training.

The sheriff said an agreement with State Police Capt. Dave Pearson will enable his men to concentrate on rural areas while troopers will handle highway accidents. After hearing of the agreement, Charles Dunphy, District 1, called for another step in cooperation "between the city and county at the Law Enforcement Center."

In a 19-6 roll-call vote members approved the hiring of the deputies. However, a separate vote was needed to appropriate funds to pay their salaries, estimated at $22,000 annually.

One of those opposing the hiring, James P. Green, District 4, asked the sheriff for a breakdown on current costs of the department and a projection of costs for next year. Nehring responded, saying he could not furnish the information because he could not tell what costs will rise by that time. Again Green asked for the report. And again Nehring said he would do the best job he could to hold down expenses.

Vernon Gittleton, District 2, interrupted the conversation and said if Nehring is going to be required to furnish the cost projections "then all the department heads should have to do it. Let's not just pick on the sheriff."

Kant added: "I think we have to look at the sheriff's record and see that he is doing a good job holding costs down."

In a vote to appropriate funds for the deputies, Green voted in favor. The amount approved for paying the deputies for the remainder of the year was $15,452.

In other action during today's abbreviated session, which adjourned before noon, the board appropriated $82,000 from the sale of the old nursing-home property and applied it toward the new nursing home.

Approved a $6,000 appropriation from the County General Fund for the Jury Commission to compile a new jury list at the request of Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales.

Increased the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund tax levy by $50,000 because of a deficit amount budgeted.

Approved payment of $530 for the purchase of two heaters at the nursing home.

Approved an expenditure of up to $350 for conducting a law-enforcement seminar to be held in Dixon at Dixon Police, sheriff's deputies and state police. State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward said the seminar will deal with new laws and procedures relating to prosecution.

Here is how Lee County Board members voted at today's meeting: For hiring two additional sheriff's deputies—Voting yes: Burrs, Cheeseman, Dunphy, Ege, Erickson, Faber.

Fraza, Gittleton, Gusse, Hamersmith, Henning, Kant, Koch, Norden, Padgett, Rogers, Sexton, Smith, Topper.

Voting no: Bales, Burke, Conroy, Green, Huffman, Schrauth.

For paying the salaries of the two deputies—Voting yes: Bales, Burrs, Cheeseman, Conroy, Dunphy, Ege, Erickson, Faber, Fraza, Gittleton, Green, Gusse, Hamersmith, Huffman, Koch, Norden, Padgett, Rogers, Sexton, Smith, Topper. Voting no: Burke, Huffman, Schrauth.

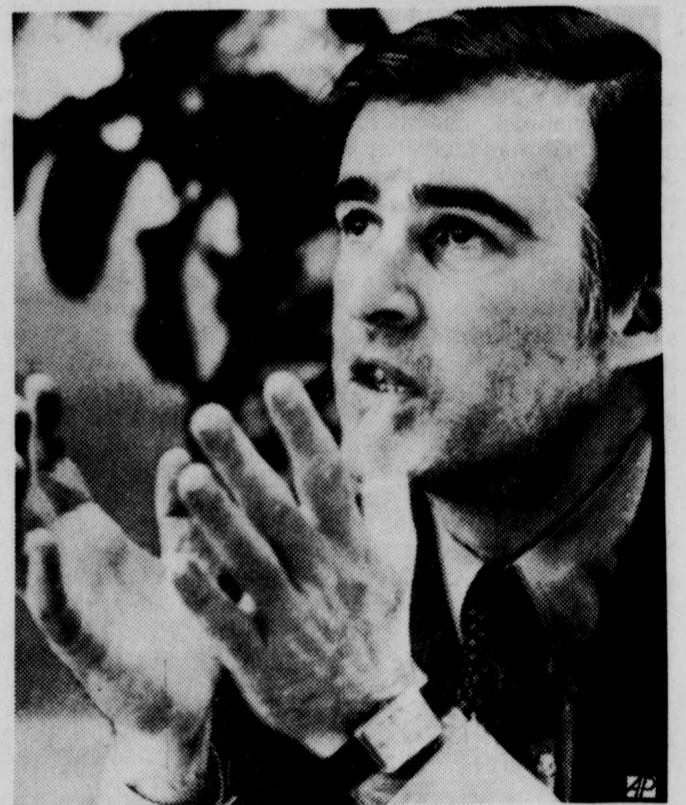

Board members voted unanimously in favor of increasing the tax levy for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, to purchase two heaters at the Lee County Nursing Home and to compile a new jury list.

New $2 bills proving to be popular item

By The Associated Press

The $2 bill appeared today for the first time in a decade and banks reported the new money seemed to be an instant hit.

"They seem to be going like hotcakes," said John Calkins of the First National Bank of Boston, the city's largest. Each teller at all of the bank's 40 branches was supplied with 500 of the new bills.

Ronald Coleman of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago said, "We've been getting quite a few people in this morning who are purchasing the $2 bills."

He said some people were "buying them as souvenirs and taking them over to the Post Office" where they purchased a 13-cent stamp, pasted it on the bill and had it cancelled.

Coleman said Continental had $2 million worth of the new bills.

Banks have been holding the new bills for a couple of days now with directions to keep them in their vaults until today — the anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birthday. By year-end, 400 million of the new bills will have been distributed, including 225 million today.

A man requesting change at a bank was asked if he wanted it in $2 bills. He finally said yes, adding: "It probably spends the same."

Another customer, a woman, said, "Every time I look at the bill, I realize it's something to be proud of. For a while it will be something to hold on to."

The Founding Faith—part 1

Early settlers viewed America as the promised land

Editor's Note: This is the first part of a five-part Easter series on the bicentennial theme of the nation's birth, "The Founding Faith." This installment deals with the American sense of destiny as a "promised" land.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In the image of the ancient Israelites who broke free from bondage in Egypt, the early settlers in America saw their venture as a divine liberation from the yoke of the "old world" to shape their own lives in a land given them.

It was God's "new Israel." They had fled the oppressive "pharaohs" of Europe, crossed the "Red Sea" of the Atlantic, braved its furies and entered an unknown "wilderness" to build a new "Zion" on earth.

"We shall find that the God of Israel is among us," wrote the governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, John Winthrop, at its beginnings in 1630. "For we must consider that we shall be as a City upon a Hill" . . . The eyes of all people are upon us." That sense of divinely appointed destiny, of being chosen for a special mission in the world to bring "light to the nations," as Scripture phrased it, pervaded the life of the colonial communities, fired the American Revolution, and has tinged the country's outlook ever since.

"Righteous Empire," historian Martin Marty described it in a book of that name. It has nurtured America's greatness and also, occasionally, its arrogance and imperial might. There is a double edge to it, as Moses told the Israelites, both "blessing and curse."

Those contrasting possibilities often were cited by the early Americans. "Thus stands the cause between God and us," Winthrop wrote, recalling the Biblical lawgiver's alternatives, of goodness or evil, life or death.

"Therefore let us choose life, that we and our seed may live, by obeying his voice and cleaving to him," Winthrop wrote. If this is done, "the Lord will be our God and delight to dwell among us as his own people and will command a blessing upon us . . . He shall make us a praise and glory."

That high calling resounded through the documents and speeches of the period, becoming etched in the consciousness of a people.

Sometimes, their past European persecutions and new hardships were compared to Christ's crucifixion, ensuing in victorious life, a promise of renewal reflected in a "new world." That term itself conveys the revivifying note of Easter.

But most consistently, the colonists saw their experience as a re-enactment of the ancient deliverance of the children of Israel from thralldom, a pilgrimage into the wilds toward the goal of a "promised land."

The Lord will make "his American Israel high above all nations which he has made," said Ezra Stiles, an early president of Yale University. Both ministers and magistrates applied the analogy to the emerging nation.

While the ideal was universal, "its roots were Hebraic," says historian Winthrop S. Hudson. "It's explication was cast in Hebraic metaphors—chosen people, covenanted nation, Egyptian bondage, promised land."

When Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams in 1776 were assigned to design an official seal for the new nation, both Franklin and Jefferson considered the image of the exodus from Egypt as the best representation of the American struggle for a new land of freedom.

Franklin proposed a portrayal of Moses lifting his hand over the Red Sea as its waters engulfed Pharaoh's troops and chariots, with this motto: "Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God."

Jefferson suggested a representation of the children of Israel in the wilderness, led by a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night, as in the Biblical account. The U.S. seal, adopted in 1782 and appearing on every dollar bill, shows the "eye of God" above an Egyptian pyramid with these words:

"Annuit Coeptis," meaning, "He has favored our undertakings."

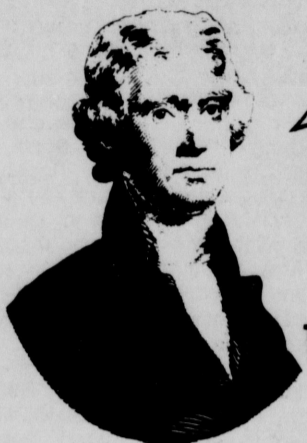

George Washington, as commander-in-chief of the Continental Army, was likened to Moses, Gideon, Joshua, leaders of the Israelites struggling for a new land. Jefferson, concluding his second presidential inaugural, referred to the Biblical image of America, saying:

"I shall need . . . the favor of that Being who led our fathers, as Israel of old, from their native land and planted them in a country flowing with all the necessities and comforts of life."

In origin, America's sense of God's favor always was tempered by the Biblical awareness that misused potentialities would bring divine judgment. There was a consequent insistence on moral discipline, an element sometimes wanting in later national leadership, in-

Monticello: A shrine to one of our greats

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—For 26 years I have been a trustee of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, a nonprofit organization that restored Monticello and maintains it as a national shrine. On Jefferson's birthday (April 13, 1743) each year the trustees dine at Monticello and that is why I am here.

Each year's invitation, in Jefferson's own script surrounded by the circle he used, reads: "Th. Jefferson presents his compliments and requests the favor of your company to dinner at Monticello on April 13 at seven in the evening."

The dinnerware is Jefferson's, the flowers are his choice and we serve the same menu he selected (venison featured) when he invited the Marquis de Lafayette there for dinner. Since Jefferson was an excellent violinist, chamber music usually follows, including scores Jefferson wrote. His own music stand is part of the Foundation's Monticello restoration.

Jefferson, 6 feet 2 inches tall, straight as the spire of the Washington Monument, large-boned, slim, slightly redheaded, was a delightful and congenial companion; always hopeful, a good talker, a good listener, treasured as a friend. His wine cellar was one of the best in the Western world.

Jefferson's library became the nucleus of the Library of Congress. His book on gardens remains in print: a classic. Monticello abounds with his amazing inventions. Jefferson was a superb rider; he rode horseback up to 90 miles daily at the age of 70 and his favorite horse, Caracatus, stood at the top of all racing horses in Virginia.

He was a prince of all trades and master of all and what keeps coming through to you at Monticello is the man himself.

Jefferson had the Leonardo seed—a Renaissance man, really.

Albemarle County was in the Virginia wilderness and it took Jefferson 25 years to build this world-famous architectural masterpiece a mile or so from his birthplace at Shadwell. He was Monticello's designer, draftsman, architect, engineer and landscape genius as well. The timber was cut and the stone hewn from his mountaintop itself, the beautiful bricks were made in his kilns, the nails in his nailery.

Jefferson obtained his first architectural book when a student at William & Mary College—bought from an old cabinetmaker near the college gate. This first book seems to have developed his passion for architecture and building. But how anyone innocent of apprenticeship or training could achieve such a classic is beyond understanding.

Jefferson started leveling his mountaintop in 1768 and began building in 1769. On Feb. 14, 1772, he brought his bride—charming Martha Wayles Skelton, a childless widow of 23—to his unfinished home. He was then only 29. He was, of course, only 33 when he wrote the Declaration of Independence on the remarkably inventive candlelit desk of his own design which you can see today at Monticello.

Martha was Jefferson's Gala-tea—their married life was extremely happy. But only two daughters of their six children survived infancy and Martha herself died within 10 years. Jefferson never remarried.

Monticello was nearly finished, except for the second story portico. Jefferson was too disconsolate to proceed, nor did he until returning from the presidency.

Voltaire said, "The man who thinks makes others think." Jefferson was first and predominantly an intellectual and it is utterly natural that his last act was to create the University of Virginia.

Widely called the most beautiful assembly of academic buildings in the world, the university remains to this day the lengthened shadow of Jefferson, its architect, builder and first Rector.

In Italian Monticello means "Little Mountain" and, incidentally, Jefferson always used the Italian pronunciation—like the musical instrument. He occupied it 53 years. As President, Jefferson reduced the national debt. But as a generous host at Monticello, a father, a father-in-law and a grandfather his hospitality was so boundless that he died $100,000 in debt.

Jefferson had said: "All my dreams end where I hope my days will end, at Monticello." They did. He died there, age 83, on July 4, 1826—precisely the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Real rebuilt bodies

The "bionic" man, or woman, with superhuman powers may only be a creation of science fiction. But medical science, teamed with technology, is making impressive progress in rebuilding the bodies of arthritis victims and enabling them to return to almost normal lives.

In the past, the usual procedure in treating arthritis-ravaged joints was to fuse them, which rendered them totally rigid and immobile. Today, the increasingly practical alternative is to replace the joint entirely.

One of the latest developments is an artificial ankle. More than 20 implantations of the device have been performed by surgeons at the University of California's College of Medicine in Irvine. Some patients who have been unable to walk without a crutch for years are reportedly taking up such sports as golf and tennis.

The same research team also developed an artificial knee three years ago, which is now implanted in more than 5,000 persons in the U.S. and Europe.

Replacement of diseased hips with relatively simple metal and plastic ball and socket parts has been carried out for a decade and is now considered routine in arthritis patients. According to United States Surgical Corp., makers of a one-piece artificial hip, more than 50,000 such operations are performed in this country each year.

In addition to artificial hip, knee and ankle replacements, specialists are also able to reconstruct finger joints. Future candidates for replacement with artificial joints are the wrist, elbow and shoulder.

We learn that a very good route was found on the north side.

Why this enemy of the people?

By TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON (NEA)—When George Orwell in "1984" wrote of hate figure Emmanuel Goldstein, The Enemy of The People, he was not so much drawing on imagination as history. Such symbols have been a core part of nations from the beginning.

In America's case it was first the devil, then the Indians, after that the British. More recently it has been Adolf Hitler, the Yellow Peril, the Communist monolith—fill in your own blanks.

Now that Vietnam no longer appears on the Orwellian screen to unite us in loathing, we have considered a variety of new targets, from the CIA to food-stamp chiselers. But the choice of the people, undoubtedly, is Richard Nixon. Here is our best opportunity since Tojo to fuse nonpartisan contempt.

Beside his overriding evil, he looks like Howdy Doody, with that nose, and, if you can't buy a used car from the President of the United States, well, that does not exactly speak well of the fellow.

George Wallace is second, maybe. He got his again the other day when the patriots at the University of Wisconsin donned face-masks of Arthur Bremer and pushed wheelchairs and ridicule at the paraplegic Alabama governor. Still, Nixon is the hate figure preferred by most; to our knowledge Wallace has not at least wandered through his mansion halls talking to pictures of his predecessors.

Indeed, we are with regularity given new ammunition to shoot at the man who held every high national elective position. In fact, a new book about the last days of the Nixon presidency, by Watergaters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, arms us atomically.

It seems Nixon had every defect except a hump on the back. He was reportedly a racist, an anti-Semite and a drunkard. Likewise he was inhuman; the authors write that when reminded once of dead G.I.'s in Southeast Asia, Nixon said: "screw 'em." No doubt Freud could explain all this, for Nixon is also supposed to have been rejected by his wife.

The accuracy of the new reports in questionable if only because no one human being could be so easily ugly. Yet so far as hate symbols go, people seldom let facts get in the way of their contempt.

Negroes never had different body odor, but no white wanted to smell them to see. There were no reported acts of sabotage by the Japanese-Americans of World War II, but there was this slant to their eyes. There is some distance between the activities of Richard Nixon and Benito Mussolini, but they do not sell 11 Duce dartboards on the streets of Washington.

It may be, post-Orwell, that "hate symbol" is no longer a proper term to apply to a Nixon. Psychologists today may prefer scapegoat. This, as Karl Menninger reminds us, more precisely identifies a primary reason behind the mass focusing of hate: self-purification.

Menninger says that criminals are often scapegoats, for example, objects we use to remind ourselves how wonderful we who have seen the light are. We aren't so wonderful, of course. Each of us is crooked to a degree. But by having jails, and staying out of them, we take our pride.

So it may be that we are using Richard Nixon to similar smug and self-righteous ends. He did not create the political structure which allows the weak and the devious to prosper. He did not force the people to vote him into offices of high trust seven times over the last quarter of the century.

All he has done, actually, is to have served as a representative of the results of a careless democracy; but by Godfrey by despising him, by holding him forever up to recoil, we need not remember that he is at root our creation.

Not only God needs vengeance, it seems. Hypocritical citizens do, too. Those who hate R. Nixon the most, it seems to me, stick with him the longest. And many who opposed him from the beginning now refuse him the understanding they would give another thief.

To what end is all this? One of the things George Orwell was perfectly clear about in his prophesies concerning 1984 was that the people who are hated can never be as bad as the people who hate.

Thais close U.S. spy stations

BANGKOK (LENS)—Less than a year after the collapse of Indochina, the last American troops in mainland Southeast Asia have been given their marching orders. The departure of the 4,000 servicemen in Thailand and the closure of their bases, which the Thai government says must be completed by the end of July, will make Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines the only American military installation in Southeast Asia.

Thailand's decision to order out the remaining Americans was a sudden one, and many thought it might have been avoided. The United States had long ago fulfilled its original pledge to withdraw all its combat troops and fighting aircraft from Thailand by March 20, the deadline fixed a year ago. The argument was over whether Thailand should allow it to continue to man a number of military installations set up in the 1960s to detect Chinese nuclear tests, track satellites and monitor Communist radio traffic. The most controversial of these was the so-called spy station at Ramasam.

At first the Thai government was not strongly opposed to letting the bases stay. The army, worried about the intentions of Communist Indochina, actively supported some sort of continued American presence. But a sudden build-up of anti-American sentiment as March 20 approached cramped the prime minister's negotiating style. And the Americans did not help by refusing to soften their own demand for sovereignty over the installations.

The deadlock ended on March 20 when the prime minister, Kukrit Pramoj, ordered the monitoring stations to be closed and the 4,000 military technicians manning them to leave within four months. The American ambassador, Charles Whitehouse, declared, "We do not stay where we are not wanted," and started the withdrawal. The only American military men left will be some 270 advisers who will continue to work in Thailand under the 1950 military assistance pact—the only bilateral military agreement that has not been abrogated.

Theoretically, the United States could resume negotiations about the withdrawals with the new Thai government which emerges out of this week's election. But Whitehouse does not seem to think this will happen.

Tractor lighting important

To insure a safe trip to the field and back, lighting and safety devices on farm implements are important, says M. T. Barlass, Lee County Extension adviser.

Illinois law requires that tractors traveling on roads and highways be equipped with two white headlights; two red taillights; and one flashing, amber, warning light, explains Barlass. If the taillights are covered by trailing equipment, they must be relocated or additional lights placed at the rear of the equipment.

The flashing, amber, light should be used in inclement weather and after sundown. It should be placed on the left side of the tractor and high enough so it is visible from both front and rear. Although only one light is required, most manufacturers are putting two on new models—one on each side.

If trailing equipment extends more than four feet to the rear of the hitch point or more than four feet to either side of the tractor center line, two red reflectors must be mounted on the left- and right-hand sides of the equipment.

SMV emblems are also required by state law on all tractors and other farm implements driven on public roads, says Barlass. The SMV emblem should be placed in the middle of the mass 4 to 12 feet from the ground and point up. This emblem is not a clearance marker but tells other drivers that the implement cannot travel more than 25 miles per hour.

If you are towing a registered truck with your farm tractor and concealing the emblem on the tractor, the truck must display an SMV emblem. Remember to remove the emblem before driving the truck itself on the highway.

The law prohibits the use of SMV emblems as markers on fences, gates, or mail boxes or on equipment which can travel over 25 miles per hour. Persons will be fined if found in violation of the law.

In addition to lighting, Barlass recommends that farmers equip tractors and other self-propelled implements with flares and fire extinguishers. A multi-purpose fire extinguisher rated 2A-10B:C will offer protection against oil, gas, stalk and straw fires. Tractor turn signals and safety chains on trailing equipment offer additional protection. Better be safe than sorry.

Lawn improvement seminar

A good lawn is an important part of the home landscape.

Homeowners may learn how to improve and maintain an existing lawn through a program of the University of Illinois horticulture TeleNet series to be aired Monday.

A. J. Turgeon, University of Illinois Turfgrass specialist, will explain what it takes to get your lawn in tip top shape.

Lawn pest management will be the topic for this session in which Turgeon will identify weed, insect and disease problems and explain control measures for the homeowner to follow.

The session will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will be held at the Loveland Community Building. There will be a question period after the class.

Persons interested in enrolling in the Lawn Management session should call the Lee County Extension office to reserve a place in the class in Amboy at 857-3525.

Area youth wins state FFA award

URBANA—Dave Wiseman of Franklin Grove, a member of the Franklin Center FFA Chapter, won the State FFA Agricultural Processing Award at the State FFA Foundation Awards Day, held April 3 at the University of Illinois.

Dave is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wiseman. His agricultural occupations instructor at Franklin Center High School is Mark Streit.

The ag processing award is one of 28 State FFA Foundation Awards. Five finalists in each award area had previously advanced through chapter, section and district competition. Dave will receive the award during the Illinois FFA Convention, June 8-10, at the University of Illinois Assembly Hall.

Selection of the state award winners is based on a personal interview as well as the size and growth of the FFA member's projects and his knowledge of the subject. The 28 state award winners were selected from nearly 17,000 Illinois FFA members.

The Illinois Foundation FFA sponsors the award program and provides medals, plaques and other awards for more than 4,000 Illinois FFA members each year.

Sewing clinics set April 22

A sewing machine "first aid" clinic will be offered by the Lee County Extension Service on April 22. Two similar sessions of 2-2½ hours each will be given at 1:30 p.m. in the Extension Office, Amboy, and 7:30 p.m. in Loveland Community Building, Dixon.

All interested homemakers, 4-H leaders and 4-H members may attend. Pre-registration with the Lee County Extension Office in Amboy (857-3525) is requested so we know how many people to expect.

Participants should bring their sewing machine, use and care manual for sewing machine, extension cord, two machine bobbins, sewing machine needles, two spools No. 50 thread (contrasting colors) and one-half yard scrap fabric of cotton or cotton blend.

4-H plans demonstration

On Monday, 4-H members will be presenting demonstrations based on the 4-H project and activities in which they are participating. Two 4-H'ers from the Senior Division (12-19 years) will be selected to represent Lee County at the Illinois State Fair in August. The Junior Division is for 4-H members 8-11 years old.

The demonstrations, 5-8 minutes in length, may be given by individuals or teams of two people.

The public is invited to attend with 4-H'ers, their parents and leaders especially encouraged to be present. The demonstrations are being held in conjunction with the April Federation meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the 4-H Center.

Circular lists soybean trials

A University of Illinois circular, now available at the Lee County Extension Office, details the performance of 262 soybean varieties tested in 1975. The circular also gives results for 1973 and 1974.

Information provided on each variety includes: Yield, moisture, lodging, maturity, and height, says M. T. Barlass, Lee County Extension adviser. The name of Circular 1117 is "1975 Performance of Commercial Soybeans in Illinois."

The U. of I. commercial soybean testing program was started in 1969 in response to requests made by seedsmen to test their private varieties, says Barlass. The number of participants has increased each year.

The program provides unbiased, objective, and accurate testing of all varieties entered. The tests are conducted at six different areas in the state. Small plots are used to reduce the chance of soil and climatic variations occurring between one plot and another.

The results of these tests are useful in judging the comparative merits of varieties and in deciding which ones to try in 1976.

Inflation revives $2 bill

New $2 bills are being released by Federal Reserve Banks today, says Frances G. Reeves, Lee County Extension adviser.

Gilbert Stuart's portrait of Thomas Jefferson is on the front of the new bill; Trumbull's "The Signing of the Declaration of Independence" is on the back.

Within a few years the banks plan to have as many "twos" as "ones" in circulation.

The $2 bill was discontinued in 1966 because many people shunned them, says Reeves. Some considered them immoral because of the $2 windows at race tracks. Other people, associating the bill with the devil, tore the corners off to ward away evil.

But the buying power of $2 has shrunk since 1966, says Reeves. Thus the new $2s will tend to replace the value of the $1 of ten years ago. The Treasury also hopes to save millions on production costs since it will have to print fewer $1 bills.

Unlike the old $2 bills, the new issue is expected to be worth only two $1 bills for collectors. No scarcity is expected; 400 million bills are scheduled to be printed every year. The value of older $2 bills ranges from $2.25 to $5, depending on condition and issue date.

Wohrley top meat judge

The Lee County Extension Office was the site of the Region I 4-H Meat Judging and Identification Contest held Saturday, March 27. The contest involved identifying 24 retail cuts of meat, what species of livestock the meat comes from and the primal cut, along with telling how the meat is to be prepared with dry or moist heat.

Winning the top individual award for Lee County was Wayne Wohrley of the Petunia City 4-H Club, with 288 points. Suzanne Baird, also from Petunia City, was second with 275 points; third high was Linda Henkel, Compton-Brooklyn Beavers Club, with 271 points; fourth place went to Barb Halboth, also from Compton-Brooklyn Beavers, with 252 points.

These four contestants will represent Lee County at the state judging contest on June 29 at the University of Illinois.

Let's Talk About Decorating

By BEVERLY CAPON

Dining and Decorating

If your home has a private dining room, you can consider yourself mighty lucky. Dining rooms add an air of elegance to a home and they're a must for those who enjoy formal entertaining. Since today is the era of "do your own thing," however, you're not limited to decorating your dining room in the traditional manner. The table, for example, need not occupy the center of the room. If your dining room has large windows with a nice view, why not place your table near the windows so your guests can enjoy the view? Or, you can use smaller tables instead of one large one. This arrangement appeals to those who prefer less formal entertaining. When not used for dining, these tables can be transformed into private study or game tables for the children.

What about the decorator's old nemesis—the dining area that's part of the living room? Try to give it a personality of its own. You could have a platform built that elevates it from the rest of the room, or define the area, by placing it under a decorative canopy.

Simpler solutions would be to set it off with color, wallpaper, or an area rug. Whether you're shopping for quality furniture for your dining room or any other room in your home, make Dunbar's your first stop. We carry a fine line of furniture at reasonable prices.

Early planted corn yields higher

Things have not changed. This year, as in the past, you can count on early planted corn to yield higher on the average than later planted corn.

Start planting any time after April 1 in southern Illinois, April 10 to 15 in central Illinois, and April 20 to 25 in northern Illinois. In central and northern Illinois, corn planted in April may yield no more than corn planted during the first few days of May. However, your chances of finishing in early May are improved if you start in April.

There are some hazards with planting early. They include: poor stand because of a cold, wet soil; weed problems in case the soil is too wet for timely cultivation; and frost injury.

The possibility of a poor stand is real. However, it is far less hazardous than 30 years ago because of modern seed treatment. And in the unlikely event of poor growing conditions, an inadequate stand can be corrected by replanting.

The weed problem can be largely offset by the proper choice of a pre-emergence herbicide.

The frost-injury hazard is often exaggerated in the minds of many farmers. In Illinois there have been few cases of stand loss from frost as the result of planting too early during the past 15 years.

Substantial acreages of corn were frosted in 1963, 1965, and 1972. The dates of frost ranged from May 30 to June 21. So, corn planted extra early was no more vulnerable than corn planted at later dates.

Loss of stand occurred only from extended periods of poor growing weather after the frost.

Frost usually has little effect because the growing point of corn is seldom killed. It is below ground level until the plant is about knee high. Frost kills only a few leaves on young corn plants. These leaves—the upper ones at the time of frost—would have become the lower leaves on fully grown plants.

These leaves are shaded by other growth further up the stalk and become ineffective when plants reach full height. Most of them actually break off before the plants are fully grown.

Varieties that tolerate high plant populations may be planted at higher populations when planted early than when planted late. There are several reasons for this.

First, early planted corn is shorter. Next, early planted corn is more likely to pollinate during a period when rainfall and temperature are favorable. Finally, less of the subsoil moisture reserve will have been used when the corn pollinates.

Suggestions on fertilizer use

Most fertilizer decisions have already been made for 1976, says R. G. Hoeft, University of Illinois Extension agronomist. However, there are a few items you may want to double check to assure good production this year.

If you are planning to apply anhydrous ammonia preplant, it is best to allow three to five days between time of application and planting. This allows the soil ample time to absorb the ammonia and reduces the danger of ammonia damaging the germinating seedlings, says Hoeft.

If nitrogen is to be side-dressed, start as soon as possible after planting. This will get the nitrogen on before rapid corn growth occurs and nitrogen uptake is rapid, says Hoeft.

Immediate side-dressing also improves the chances of finishing before the corn gets too large for the equipment. And root pruning will be reduced or avoided. Damaged roots encourage stalk rot by giving the disease organism an entry point.

When seedlings are small, do not place materials containing free ammonia near them, says Hoeft.

Reduced stands may result from improper application of fertilizer at planting time. The maximum amount of N + K<sub>2</sub>O fertilizer that can safely be placed next to the seed is 10 to 12 pounds in 40-inch rows or 12 to 15 pounds in 30-inch rows. That's when nitrogen is in the combined form of ammonium and nitrate, says Hoeft.

Rockvale club forms committees

OREGON—The March meeting of the Rockvale 4-H Club was spent in forming committees and planning for the Penny Carnival and Share-The-Fun.

Tammis Hayes gave a demonstration on "Laying Out a Pattern" and Dana Garman used her cat, "Francis" for a talk on "Cats."

Mrs. Rita Martin from Town and Country spoke to the club members on the new spring fashions.

There will not be a meeting in April. The next meeting will be May 10 at 7 p.m. in the Ogle County Resource Center.

Accident victims seek relief

Dear Ann Landers: "Murderer Without Guilt" has my sympathy. And now may I add a footnote for whatever good it might do?

We, too, were recently involved in the death of a 3-year-old child who darted in front of our car. There was no way I could have avoided hitting him. The child's parents were responsible for allowing him to run loose in the street.

Now they are suing us for an astronomical sum and the anxiety is terrible. We not only grieve for the dead child and suffer from the shock and horror of the accident, but we must hire an attorney to defend us and worry about being wiped out financially, after a lifetime of hard work and frugal living.

No responsible jury could reward these parents for their carelessness. But juries are notoriously sympathetic when a small child's death is involved, especially when they think a wealthy insurance company will pick up the tab.

We believe such cases should be heard only by a judge, since he is trained to assess the facts. What say you, Ann? — Victims

In Salem

Dear victims: Amen. I'm with you all the way.

Dear Ann Landers: I live with another woman who has a young female child. Yes, we are lesbians and I am not ashamed of it.

I am very fond of the little girl and consider myself very nearly a parent because of my relationship with her mother.

What I need to know is what I should call this child when I refer to her in conversations? I don't like to say, "She is the daughter of my roommate," because she is much more than that.

I am proud of the fact that she is the daughter of the woman I love and is as dear to me as if she were my own child. Your suggestions will be greatly appreciated. — no Closets For Us

Dear No Closets: The question you should be asking yourself is why do you feel the need to hit people over the head with the fact that you are involved in a lesbian relationship? It seems to me this is a personal matter. In fact, I can think of no matter that is more personal.

Since you feel compelled to cut the world in on your sexual preference, you could refer to the child as "the daughter of my female lover with whom I am living." If it's popped eyeballs you're after, you'll get them.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter has been invited to the prom by a nice boy. She hasn't given him a definite answer yet because she is hoping to be asked by a boy she likes better. I say this is unfair — that she should either accept the first invitation or not go.

She claims it's not done that way any more. I don't want to insist that my daughter live by my standards if they are outdated. We've agreed to abide by your answer, Ann. What is it? — Jackson, Mich.

Dear Mich.: Integrity never goes out of style. It is unfair to keep a fellow dangling while waiting for "a better offer." If your daughter would prefer to go with another boy she should say no to this one and take her chances.

Couple recites vows

Miss Theresa Durham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd R. Durham, Belvidere, and Cpl. Carey A. Beck, USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Beck, Rockford, were married Dec. 20 at the First Baptist Church, Belvidere. The Rev. George T. Ballein officiated at the double ceremony.

The bride's floor-length white gown had sheer silk sleeves trimmed with wide, flowered border lace. The dress was empire-waisted with a lace border across the shoulders, giving a yoke effect. The train was attached to the dress with a large bow. A headpiece embellished with small white pearls secured the shoulder-length veil. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of red roses, white carnations and stephanotis highlighted with baby's breath.

Miss Kimberley Dippel of Franklin Grove was the maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Veronica Bollman, Franklin Grove, and the junior bridesmaid was Miss Brenda Durham, the bride's sister. Kenneth W. Floto, Franklin Grove, served as best man, while groomsmen were Rusty Klavenga, Franklin Grove and David Durham. Mark Durham served as usher, Kimberley Durham was the flower girl, and Paul Durham served as ring-bearer.

Music was provided by the Rev. and Mrs. Robert G. Wurtz of Dixon.

The bride, a 1975 graduate of Franklin Center High School, is currently attending Illinois Wesleyan University majoring in music education. The groom, a 1973 graduate of Franklin Center High School, is a corporal in the United States Marine Corps stationed at Camp Le Jeune, North Carolina.

They are residing at Camp Le Jeune.

Handling heat and humidity

By JANET TARA
(Third of a Series)

Temperature and humidity are probably the two hardest conditions to control in the desert-like atmosphere of the average home.

While cacti and succulents thrive on these conditions, many ferns, flowering plants and orchids suffer from the low humidity common to modern housing.

Plants kept in offices have a harder battle because of the extremes in temperatures that occur at night and on the weekends when the heat or air conditioning is turned off.

Our grandparents grew full, bloom-laden geraniums in their cool kitchens but in the constant, even heat of today's homes, geraniums suffer and the lower leaves may drop.

The easiest, most popular way to raise the humidity in your home is to group plants together on a metal tray filled with pebbles. Keep the water level high enough to cover most of the pebbles but not high enough to touch the pots.

A long spell of wet weather may cut down on a plant's light, but it also temporarily raises the humidity and plants will look more lush.

Frequent misting helps offset dryness for smooth-leaved plants, but is not necessary and can be harmful to fuzzy varieties like gynura aurantiaca (purple velvet plant).

Vanilla molds

2 cups milk
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1-3rd cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sliced fresh peaches

Into a medium mixing bowl pour 1/2 cup of the milk; sprinkle the gelatin over it to soften. Meanwhile heat remaining 1 1/2 cups milk until scalded—tiny bubbles will appear around edge; pour over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add sugar, salt and vanilla and stir until sugar dissolves. Turn into five 1/2-cup molds or custard cups; chill until set; cover. At serving time, loosen edges, dip briefly in hot water and turn out. Spoon peaches, sweetened to taste, over the desserts. Makes 5 servings.

Sturdy Sopaipillas

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
3/4 cup (about) water
Stir together the flour, baking powder and salt; cut in shortening until fine; stir in enough of the water to make a dough that can be handled like pastry. Turn out on a prepared pastry cloth; with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out to a 15 by 12-inch rectangle; cut into 3-inch squares. Fry, one at a time, in deep hot fat (370 degrees on a frying thermometer), turning once, until puffed and golden-brown. Drain on brown paper. Keep hot in a warm oven. Serve at once. Makes 20.

Sluff and ruff doesn't hurt

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Usually the defense tries to avoid giving declarer a ruff and a discard, but there are always exceptions.

If West had opened a diamond South would have had no play for his three-heart contract, but West opened his partner's suit.

South took dummy's ace, cashed three trumps while winning the third lead in his hand, led the 10 of diamonds and let it ride. East was in with the queen and stopped to figure things out. He cashed his king of clubs. Then he led a third club!

South could ruff in either hand and discard in the other, but this did him no good. East was bound to gain the lead twice more. The first time he would lead a fourth club. South would ruff with the one heart left to him—either his own or dummy's, but East would get in again and this time his fifth and

Profile of Demo contenders—part 2

No. 1 priority changes in Jackson's speeches

The following is the second of three articles on the campaign tactics and styles of the top three Democratic presidential contenders. It focuses on Sen. Henry M. Jackson.

By PETER ARNETT
(AP Special Correspondent)

The crowd at Elm and Main in Rochester, N.Y., cheered when the candidate declared: "As President of the United States my number one priority will be to put America back to work so people can buy things that are manufactured here in this town."

A mostly elderly crowd at Buffalo smiled happily when they heard their choice say: "I want to give top priority, first priority, to full coverage under Medicare for senior citizens. We don't have that now."

Supporters massed at the Frontier Fire Hall at Niagara Falls roared as the candidate said: "The first thing I will do is insist welfare be a national obligation, and not put on the shoulders of the local people."

Three priorities, all number one.

One candidate. Senator Henry M. Jackson campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination in New York.

Jackson emphasized these different priorities to different audiences as the political pressure grew in New York from his two most serious opponents, former Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter and Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

And in the last days of the campaign the senator reached out for a broader constituency than his major supporters among the labor organizations, Jewish communities and regular Democrats. Jackson speeded up his public appearances to include blacks, Puerto Ricans and other ethnic groups and in one 36-hour period made these promises:

Puerto Ricans: "If elected president of the United States I will have in the White House a special assistant for Puerto Rican affairs so that problems of Puerto Rico and their importance to the United States will not be lost in the bureaucratic jungle," he told the Puerto Rican chamber of commerce in New York.

Jackson also promised "a more diligent prosecution of the bilingual education program" to further assist Hispanic voters.

Canadians: "Canadians are wonderful, terrific people, great neighbors. I want to see more emphasis in our foreign policy with reference to our neighbors here in North America. They've been neglected too long. We've taken them for granted," Jackson told a campaign meeting at Niagara County in upstate New York, a region that is heavily Canadian.

Blacks: "Medgar Evers died once, and I don't think we should lay the foundation for a second death," Jackson told 750 students meeting in the gymnasium of the Medgar Evers college in Brooklyn. The college, with a 98 per cent black student body, is faced with reduction to a two-year institution because of New York's financial problems.

Jackson told them also: "We've gone through the long civil rights struggle to bring about the right to vote, to bring about integration, equal employment opportunities and all of the other basic rights we're familiar with. The most important right is still denied, that of the civil right to a decent job and decent pay scale."

Much improved as an orator on this campaign, the gray-haired Washington state senator punches the air occasionally to emphasize his statements.

"We've got so much work to do in this country that everyone is going to be busy in the Jackson administration," he told a meeting in an upstate New York county with 14 per cent unemployment.

He has told other listeners: "Every time you reduce unemployment one per cent you have $16 billion more in the treasury. With full employment we'll have $100 billion."

No one asked him to explain his mathematics, or questioned him about how he would reduce unemployment to three per cent from the present rate of more than seven per cent.

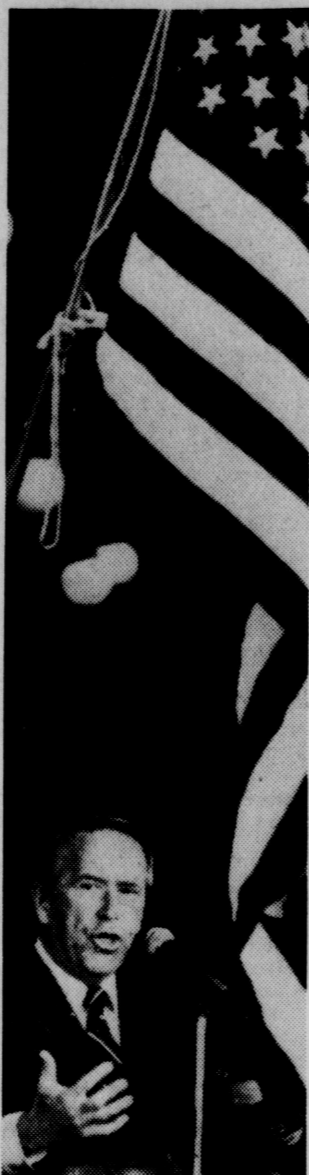

Not that much time for questions. Jackson made five campaign appearances one evening in Brooklyn, and his upstate New York trips were so tightly scheduled that the candidate could in all honesty beg off questions because he had to speed on to the next meeting place.

He was caught only at Medgar Evers College in Brooklyn. He moved among the student body to shake hands, only to be confronted by demanding students who insisted in knowing his plan to save their college. He didn't have one.

While Jackson had something special to offer each audience, he also had a major theme, and this seemed to be the promotion of a much more active federal role in health, education and welfare programs in America.

Jackson showed subtle differences in his comments on welfare payments. To a construction worker audience in Rochester, Jackson declared that there was "$75 million a year in handout checks," given in various forms of assistance from state and federal authorities. "We're going to take welfare and put it where it belongs in the hands of the federal government and not on the backs of the local people," he told his cheering white audiences.

However, Jackson never mentioned handout checks in talking with his black and Puerto Rican audiences in New York City. He explained that "when unemployment goes up one per cent we lose $16 billion in revenue" because of the loss of production and the need to support the unemployed. Less money is available for essential services.

"So we have to put people back to work to create the wealth to pay for the education and health care and other services people need," Jackson tells his minority audiences.

What are you getting for increased government spending?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Spending by all levels of government is now at an annual rate in excess of $500 billion, which is only 25 times the amount spent as recently as 1940, and 311 times the total of 1902.

And what do you get for your money? Defense and health research and a system of justice, for example, but also, says an esteemed professor, you get inflation, shoddy goods and a lot of baloney too.

Roland McKean, an economist at the University of Virginia, insists that the nation's consumers should get as exercised about government goods and services as they have about the products of the private sector.

Government does come in for consumer criticism, of course, but it does seem that the thrust of the consumer movement has been focused on private enterprise, perhaps because its abuses are more evident.

Ever-vigilant and hopeful, despite some stunning statistical reverses, the economy-minded Tax Foundation forever tries to correct that situation by reducing — a questionable phrase — tax figures to something meaningful, to wit:

The average taxpayer this year will in effect be working for the government until May 1. It will take until that date to earn the money that Uncle Sam and his nieces and nephews in state and local government will spend.

McKean thinks we ought not just read these figures once a year, when the foundation compiles them, but keep them in mind all year round, because the "products" of government often are inferior, wasteful and dangerous.

Public products, he maintains, should come under the same scrutiny as the products of private enterprise. What are these products? Tariffs, price-support programs, regulatory programs, housing, welfare, defense ...

"When I say the consumer continues to face shoddy products, hazardous products, and misleading advertising, I think mainly of the public goods that he buys," McKean stated in a classic little article for the foundation's "Tax Review."

The article was published more than a year ago, but some readers will never forget the intensity of his indignation, the controlled fury of his argument, best expressed in this one sentence:

"As a consumer I do indeed feel put upon regarding the quality of my goods — but it's not as much because my hot dogs are 30 per cent chicken and bread crumbs; it's much more, because my public goods often seem to be 60 per cent baloney."

People in the news

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, in a clear reference to political violence in Italy, has urged young Christians to avoid the use of force to achieve political goals.

The pontiff, in his Palm Sunday message, said Jesus was on the side of "peace and universal brotherhood.... On the other (side) is the stream of violence, division and conflict, and in the end, war."

The Pope began the day by blessing the palms and olive branches on the threshold of St. Peter's Basilica. After attending mass, he went to the window of his studio overlooking St. Peter's Square and addressed and blessed the crowd.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Economist Walter Heller says President Ford's budget will hit the economy "with a sickening thud" unless it is revised by Congress.

Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, said Sunday the state of the economy in terms of direction is good.

Nevertheless, he said the economy "is still at an abysmal level" and its full capacity isn't being used.

Heller said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that he believes Congress should increase Ford's budget to about $415 billion from its current level, which he said is about $400 billion.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Wussler, hired as a mail room clerk in 1957, has been named president of the CBS Television Network to succeed Robert D. Wood, who has resigned to become a producer.

Wussler, 40, vice president for sports since July 1974, came up through the news side of the network. He won Emmy awards for news coverage, including two for coverage of U.S. Apollo space flights.

John A. Schneider, president of the CBS-Broadcast Group, said Wood, who was president of the network for the past seven years, would produce features exclusively for CBS "in his favorite part of the country — Southern California."

Wood, 51, is leaving after a season when, for the first time, ABC has frequently led CBS week by week in the Nielsen ratings.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Former movie starlet Terry Moore, 47, says she was secretly married to the late billionaire recluse Howard Hughes, but she says she will not file a claim against his estate.

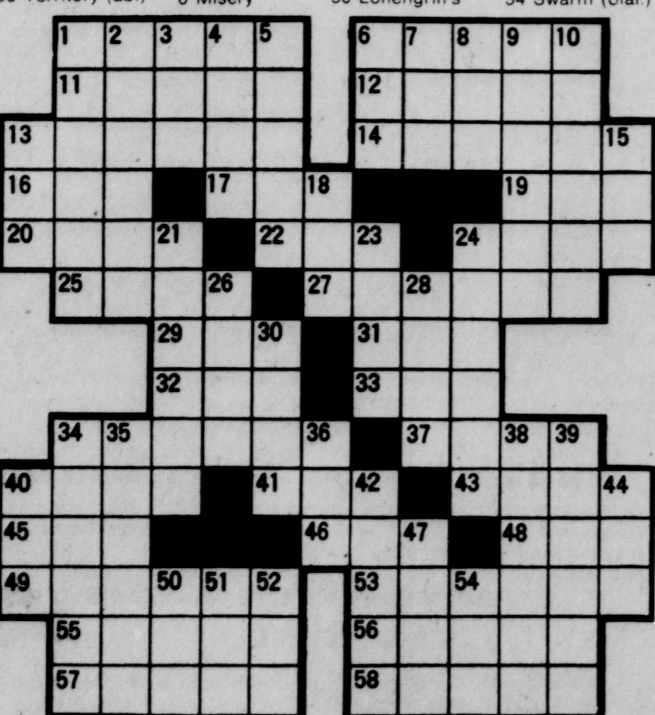

"Howard was the greatest lover I ever had," she said in an interview published Sunday in the Fort Lauderdale News. "He was the best."

Hughes, who died last week from kidney failure, had only two known wives. He was divorced from Houston socialite Ella Rice in 1929. No other marriage was recorded for Hughes until he married actress Jean Peters in 1957. They were divorced in 1971.

Miss Moore said there "may have been" children from her alleged marriage to Hughes, but she refused to be more specific because she is writing her autobiography. She declined to name her publisher.

Rochelle annexation motion is amended

ROCHELLE — The Rochelle City Council Monday night amended a motion concerning a proposed annexation of land to be used for the new clubhouse by the Moose Lodge.

The annexation, concerning 3.5 acres of land on the east side of Caron Rd., south of the Professional Building, had received unanimous recommendation for approval by the planning commission, but the council was unable to get enough signatures on the motion. The members then voted to amend the motion and file it for public inspection until the next council meeting.

Several objectors were at the meeting to present a petition of opposition. The objectors, most of whom lived near the proposed site, were concerned with having a bar adjacent to residential property, possible noise and traffic congestion and depreciation of property values.

The amendment ordinance was unanimously passed by the four council members present. James I. McCaslin, vice mayor presided in the absence of Mayor Cipolla.

In other business, the council accepted bids for the completion of the police department indoor shooting range. The heating and ventilation contract was awarded to Hatt Bros., DeKalb, who submitted a bid of $10,000, while Airtight, Inc., Dixon, was awarded the acoustical wall and ceiling tile contract for their bid of $3,482.

The council also received a check for $10,463 as payment on the water waste grant. A total of $441,023 has now been received toward the grant.

The council members authorized the acquisition of a right-of-way to complete an electrical loop line around Rochelle from Flag Center and U.S. 51 on the north and east to Caron Road, where it will eventually connect with lines at Ill. 38.

Faces charge

A Dixon man, believed to have attempted to commit suicide, was charged with disorderly conduct Monday evening.

Gregory Y. Poling, 27, Chateau Estates, was rushed to KSB Hospital and treated for a cut wrist before he was arrested. Police said that Poling had made two calls to the Law Enforcement Center and another call to the Ron Voorhies residence.

Rhoda Voorhies told officers that Poling, who was upset over breaking up with his girlfriend, said he was going to attempt suicide.

Poling was released on bond to appear in court April 22.

Theft scheme is being probed

Local law enforcement officials are investigating two reports of theft by deception in Dixon over the weekend.

Two people reportedly went to the Montgomery Ward store Saturday to exchange a dress for a refund. Officials later found the dress had been shoplifted. A similar incident took place at Spurgeon's that week-end.

On Monday the two went back to Ward's to get a refund for a shirt. Dave Schaab, store manager, called police, but the suspects fled before police arrived.

Witnesses said the suspects may be driving a car with Tennessee license plates.

$300 fine, probation

Richard L. Schmoldt, 21, Milwaukee, Wis., was fined $300 and placed on probation for a year by Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales Monday in Lee County Circuit Court.

Schmoldt pleaded guilty to possession of a controlled substance, amphetamines. A charge of possession of marijuana was dismissed. Four other people arrested on March 22, when Dixon Police executed a search warrant at 1411 W. First St., are awaiting court action on similar charges.

In another court disposition, Bales ordered Joe Dyer make $66.50 restitution and serve a year's probation after he pleaded guilty to burglary. Dyer, 17, Sterling, was accused of taking part in the Dec. 3 burglary of the George Bilderback residence, rural Dixon. Stereo equipment, a TV, radio, jewelry and money were stolen in that crime. George Friesen and Ernesto Garcia, are both serving penitentiary terms in connection with the incident.

Welfare appropriation clears committee

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House, after receiving a warning that welfare checks for the aged, blind and disabled may be delayed next month unless the legislature acts promptly, has freed from committee a $145.6 million appropriation for welfare grants.

The House voted 99 to 10 Monday to end further committee consideration of the supplemental appropriation for the Department of Public Aid and send it to the full House.

The measure would boost the total appropriation for welfare this fiscal year to $1.9 billion, less than $100 million below the request for fiscal 1977 which starts July 1.

The bill, which also needs approval by the Senate, will be among several which House leaders hope to act on before recessing today for a 12-day Easter and Passover holiday.

Majority Leader Gerald Shea, D-Riverside, told House members that he had received a letter from DPA director James Trainer who asked for quick approval of the appropriation.

Shea said Trainer told him that $1.8 million in checks for some 35,000 recipients in the aid program for the aged, blind and disabled are scheduled to go out May 3. But he quoted Trainer as saying without the supplemental appropriation, the checks would be delayed.

Rep. John Dunn, D-Decatur, opposed taking the bill from committee. Further consideration, he said, is required on how to divide up an estimated $200 million the state will have to spend on extra appropriations year. He added that educators alone are requesting an additional $100 million.

The General Assembly returned Monday from a four-day break, each chamber meeting briefly in floor sessions.

The Senate passed without a dissenting vote legislation requiring lawmakers to receive their $20,000 a year salary in monthly installments rather than in a lump sum at the beginning of the year.

The measure, which has been pushed into the spotlight by a citizens' group seeking signatures for a proposed constitutional amendment on the issue, was sent to the House where similar legislation is pending.

"There are very few people who receive their pay in advance," said Sen. Vince Demuzio, D-Carlinville. "There is no reason legislators should set themselves above the working class of people in this state."

But several legislators grumbled about passing the bill.

Sen. Frank Savickas, D-Chicago, questioned whether the bill sponsored by Rep. Harber Hall, R-Bloomington, might cost taxpayers money due to loss of interest now earned from lump sum pension contributions.

"I don't think we should be concerning ourselves with how we look, but what is right for the people of Illinois," he said.

Until last year, legislators could on written request draw an entire two-year's salary at one time. However, the legislature passed a bill last spring which takes effect next January eliminating the two-year option and allowing lawmakers to be paid yearly or monthly.

Historically, one or two years salary was taken at the beginning of the year so legislators could pay back their campaign expenses quickly and reduce the risk that they would be obligated to their creditors. The practice began when legislators spent less time in Springfield and were paid less.

The two House appropriations committees met for several hours each Monday but appeared no closer than they were last week on how to approach Gov. Daniel Walker's $9.9 billion state budget proposal for fiscal 1977.

One appropriations committee, headed by Rep. Kenneth Boyle, D-Carlinville, sent to the House floor bills appropriating $10.1 million for the Department of Veterans Affairs and $513,600 for the Human Relations Commission.

But a second committee, chaired by Rep. Thaddeus Lechowicz, D-Chicago, a loyalist of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, refused to approve individual department bills, preferring to hold them while the committee considers $7 billion in agency appropriations contained in an omnibus bill.

Daley loyalists are backing the omnibus bill approach, saying it gives legislators a better grasp of whether the state can afford to pay for what they are voting to spend.

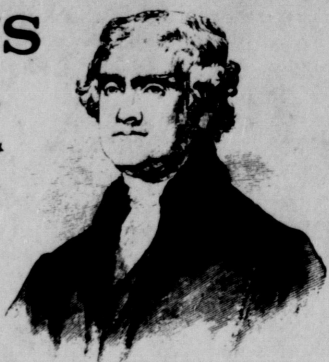

Illinois legislators traditionally have passed separate budget bills for each of the more than 100 individual agencies and departments.

Walker's backers, some downstate and independent Democrats and Republicans have been skeptical about the omnibus approach to budget-making.

They say the approach will give Daley supporters too much power in final days of the session when a select group of legislators meet in conference committees to reconcile differences on bills between the House and Senate.

Two for the Money

The Treasury Department will honor the 233rd birthday of the third U.S. President today by reissuing the $2 bill with his picture on it. The $2 bill — or "deuce" — was discontinued 10 years ago. It is being revived as a cost-saving measure, to avoid printing as many $1 bills. The Treasury Department plans to print 625 million of the new bills over the next year. Bills circulated before 1966 had this President's picture on the front and his home, Monticello, on the reverse side. The new "deuce" bears a picture of the signing of the Declaration of Independence on the back of the bill.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was this 3rd President of the United States?

Senior Party Line

There is a new state department concerning veterans and their families in Illinois. When did this department come into being, and what are its responsibilities?—G. R. Dear Mr. R:

The Illinois Department of Veterans' Affairs was created by legislation in 1975 and came into existence on Jan. 1, 1976. Although the cabinet-level department for veterans is technically new, it succeeds the Veterans' Commission which has been in Illinois since 1945.

The Department's basic duty is to assist veterans and their dependents in obtaining state, federal and other benefits to which they are entitled. It also is charged with conducting informational, educational and training programs and coordinating the activities of all state agencies whose duties affect veterans and their families.

In addition to offices in Springfield and Chicago, the department must have a number of field offices in other parts of the state. A service officer is assigned to each field office, and that officer must be an honorably discharged veteran who served in the Spanish-American War, World War I or II, or in Korea or Vietnam.

Where does the money come from to support community action agencies, like the CEFS Economic Opportunity Corporation serving southern and central Illinois?—E. S. Dear Mrs. S:

Quite often community action agencies operate with a mix of federal, local and state funds, depending on the types of programs offered and the people served. The former U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity has been replaced by the Community Services Administration which is helping support community action agencies across the country.

Those agencies which engage in programs and services for senior citizens may receive funding from the U.S. Older Americans Act, which is channeled from the federal Administration on Aging (which is part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare) to the Illinois Department on Aging and from there to regional Area Agencies on Aging within the state.

The CEFS Economic Opportunity Corp. based in Effingham, for example, receives funds from the Community Services Administration, the Administration on Aging, Area Agencies on Aging and HEW. It also receives funds from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission and from the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). CETA monies are part of a manpower program used to hire low-income people.

A number of community action agencies receive funds from the Department on Aging for senior services. They include the Joliet-Will County Community Action Agency, Kankakee-DeKalb Community, Peoria Community Action Agency, Illinois Valley Economic Development Corporation, BCMW Community Services in southwestern Illinois, Western Egyptian Economic Opportunity Council in Steelville, Embarras River Basin Agency in southeastern Illinois, and others. Many of them operate senior nutrition sites.

Is there any organization devoted to addressing the needs of Spanish-speaking elderly people?—E. V. Dear Mrs. V:

The federal government recently awarded a grant to a group called the Asociacion Nacional Por Personas Mayores, and it is believed to be the first national organization involved in determining the needs of Spanish-speaking seniors.

The association will try, on a national basis, to bring about greater participation by Hispanic seniors in community programs and services, such as the Title III community programs. Newsletters describing current programs and pending legislation will be distributed to interested Latino communities. You can contact the organization by writing Mrs. Carmela G. Lacayo, Executive Director, at 3875 Wilshire Boulevard, Suite 401, Los Angeles, Calif. 90005.

Our Senior Action Centers here in Illinois have tried to make information more available to Spanish-speaking elderly, including translating application forms and informational material on senior benefits into Spanish.

Persons may call the toll-free Senior Action Hotline 800-252-6565 with questions or complaints about government agencies or programs or for information about tax relief, health care, food stamps, Social Security, employment, housing or legal aid.

In Dixon persons may call the Lee County Council for Aging 288-2117.

Body mystery may involve scheme for insurance fraud

CHICAGO (AP) — Police say a body recovered from the Chicago River more than two weeks ago may have been used in a complex insurance fraud scheme involving some $50,000.

Homicide Cmdr. Joseph DiLeonardi and authorities in three states Monday attempted to sort out the facts in connection with the bizarre and apparently deliberate misidentification of a corpse fished out of river March 25.

Authorities said the body was first identified as Estel Blevins, a 32-year-old stockbroker from Clearwater, Fla. He was last seen by his wife March 22, leaving for a sudden vacation in Chicago.

Florida police said that Blevins carried at least $50,000 in life insurance.

The body was cremated March 27 after a man who identified himself as William Hamilton of Jackson, Mich., told

When contacted recently on the telephone by Chicago police, Hamilton reportedly refused to answer questions and hung up. Authorities have sent a police investigator to Jackson to question him.

Life quickly back to normal at Dwight

DWIGHT, Ill. (AP) — Firefighters and a special emergency team worked through the night to rid themselves of a truckload of toxic bromine gas, but for everyone else in Dwight life quickly returned to normal.

Gas escaping from 200 fifty-pound bottles belched out of a semitrailer truck bound from Memphis to Chicago early Monday, forcing the driver to abandon the rig about two miles north of Dwight on Interstate 55.

The menacing reddish-brown cloud that formed around the truck began drifting toward Dwight, forcing closure of both lanes of the interstate and evacuation of the entire Livingston County community of 3,800 for more than five hours.

"Everything's normal again, people went back to work about as soon as they got into town," a police spokesman said.

Two small factories and the R.R. Donnelley Corp. printing plant resumed operations in the afternoon, as the townspeople, with a collective sigh of relief, hurried back to their homes.

A team from the Hulcher Emergency Service in Virden, drove the gas-shrouded truck off the highway about 9 a.m., and parked it on a nearby dirt road.

Fire trucks were kept on standby throughout the night as the workers attempted to remove the deadly cargo from the truck with an end-loader.

New puffs of gas erupted from the truck once, about 5 p.m., but firemen quickly smothered it.

Dwight never had experienced anything like it before, but the evacuation "was excellent," said Marvin Runyon, Dwight police captain. "By PA system, civil defense sirens, door to door and mouth to ear," residents were roused from their beds, he added. "People scattered to the four winds."

State Rep. James M. Riccolo, D-Dwight, said the cloud was "about three stories tall and was hugging the ground. It had a sickening smell and it burned," he added as he wiped his eyes with gauze.

One woman who lives on a farm between Dwight and where the cloud formed said her family "threw on our clothes and got out as fast as we could."

The cloud enveloped their home before they could get away, she said. "We weren't hurt, but I know we would have been if we'd stayed around."

She said it was "continuous for about a mile—like a fog—thick enough that we couldn't see the flashing lights on the police cars" near the truck one-third of a mile away.

More than 100 attend forestry field day

More than 100 woodland owners in northwest Illinois attended the Blackhawk Hills RC&D's first Forestry Field Day held last week at Oregon.

A series of ten-minute talks on pertinent forestry subjects were given by selected authorities.

Dick Thom, staff forester with the Illinois Department of Conservation, spoke on the services available to woodland owners from the Illinois Division of Forestry and the Forestry Incentive Program (FIP) and the ACP Program. The Illinois Tree Farm system and windbreaks were explained by Ted Curtin, extension forester. The subject of grazing our woodlands was covered by Ralph Eads, district forester. Howard Abbott, RC&D Forestry Committee member, discussed with the group custom sawing and home use of wood products. Questions on trespassing and littering were answered by Ogle County Sheriff Jerry Brooks. Plants and species adaptability was the topic of a talk by George Poe, district forester. A Micholson, acting state forester, explained forestry taxation laws and possible alternatives that might be introduced and supported by the local people through the Blackhawk Hills RC&D. Walnut values, selling and harvesting was illustrated by Leo Fruen, consultative forester. Earl Sayers gave an account of his experiences with a Christmas tree farm. Hunting on private forest lands was colorfully presented by Paul Beebe, retired game warden.

In the afternoon the group traveled to the Sniessippi Forest southeast of Oregon to view forestry in action. The first stop was to see the sawmill in operation. Sawlog values, log scale and lumber values were explained. Demonstrations of pine thinning, pruning, marking, cutting, skidding and loading were given. Selective logging in hardwood stands, marking, measuring for volume and growth, value and T.S.I. systems were explained and pointed out. Examples of Christmas tree culture and tree planting, followed by viewing damage done by a 1974 tornado, concluded the day.

NBA playoffs start

By The Associated Press
Not that many fans thought the Cleveland Cavaliers would ever make the National Basketball Association playoffs. And not that many think the Milwaukee Bucks belong there.

The Cavaliers, having completed the first half of a Cinderella dream by winning their first division title with a 49-33 record, go for their first fitting of the glass slipper Tuesday night when they host the Washington Bullets in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

It was the Bullets, last year's NBA Eastern Conference champs, whom the Cavaliers beat out by a game in the Central Division. The Cavaliers finished third last year and last in the four years before that, their first four in the league.

In a pair of best-of-three qualifying rounds, the Milwaukee Bucks host the Detroit Pistons Tuesday night and the Buffalo Braves visit the Philadelphia 76ers Thursday night. In the other best-of-seven quarter-final series starting Tuesday night, the Phoenix Suns — also first-timers in the playoffs — play the SuperSonics in Seattle.

All four opening-round matchups were determined by the teams' final-season percentages in the Eastern and Western Conferences. The conferences' regular-season champs will have to wait to find out who will be their quarter-final foes.

The best one in each conference will play the qualifying-round winner. That will send the Boston Celtics, tops in the East, against the Buffalo-Philadelphia winner and Golden State, best in the West, against the survivor of the Milwaukee-Detroit matchup.

It's a match-up of contrasts in Cleveland. Coach Bill Fitch's use of balance brought the Cavaliers their first division title and playoff berth. There was no real superstar but, rather, a blend of scoring and defense by starters Jim Chones, Jim Brewer, Bingo Smith, Jim Clemons and Dick Snyder. Chones led the scoring with a 15.8-point average. Washington, meanwhile, got most of its firepower from Phil Chenier, with a 19.9 average, and Elvin Hayes, at 19.8.

The Midwest was hardly what you'd call the NBA's showcase division. Milwaukee finished with a 38-44 record and won the title by two games over Detroit. Still, each team has an outstanding shooter, the Bucks with Bob Dandridge's 21.5 average, the Pistons with Bob Lanier's 21.3 mark.

Seattle and Phoenix were separated by only one game in the Pacific Division's final standings, with the SuperSonics winding up first with a 43-39 record. Fred Brown, Seattle's "sixth man," was the Sonics' top scorer with a 23.1 average.

The Blue Raiders trimmed the deficit to 10-9 in the fourth on a walk, a Tim Renner single, two errors, plus a Ken Wilcoxon RBI single. Walnut, now 0-4 for the season, will host La Salle-Peru for a doubleheader Saturday.

Cattfish blanks the Orioles

HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Television's Six Million Dollar Man met baseball's Three Million Dollar Man Monday night and the Baltimore Orioles couldn't get their two cents in.

"Lee Majors waved to me before the game," Cattfish Hunter said. "I wanted to trade him and get a new arm."

Don't try to run that one by the Orioles. They couldn't do much with Hunter's old arm, managing only three singles as the New York Yankees made off with a 3-0 triumph to kick off ABC-TV's 16-week Monday night television package.

In the only other major league games, the Texas Rangers trimmed the Oakland A's 5-1 behind veteran Nelson Briles and the Houston Astros blanked the San Francisco Giants 5-0 as J.R. Richard, Larry Hardy and Ken Forsch scattered nine hits.

Cleveland at Boston in the American League was called off by cold weather and San Diego at Los Angeles in the National was rained out with 56,000 on hand. It was the Dodgers' first home rainout since 1967 and only their second since moving to Los Angeles in 1958.

In frigid 43-degree Baltimore, Majors — an ABC-TV star, match — threw out the first ball before Hunter took over and it's doubtful if the patty cake Orioles, with Reggie Jackson back home in Arizona and Lee May in the clubhouse nursing a first-inning groin injury, could have hit that one, either.

The Yanks staked Hunter to a first-inning run on Lou Piniella's run-producing double off Ross Grimsley and added two unearned runs on Thurman Munson's bases-loaded single in the fifth. Tony Muser collected two of the hits Hunter allowed.

Rangers 5, A's 1
Briles, pitching in a light rain, checked hard-hitting Oakland on four hits and was backed by Jeff Burroughs' three-run homer off Paul Mitchell and Tom Griev's solo shot off Mike Norris.

Briles, a 32-year-old right-hander acquired from Kansas City during the off-season, blanked the A's until the seventh when Don Baylor tripled and scored.

Tennis results

ROCK ISLAND — The Rock Island Rocks blanked the Dixon Dukes varsity tennis team 9-0, here, Monday in a high-school match. The loss drops Dixon's season record to 4-3 with the Dukes next returning home to face Boylan Wednesday.

In singles, number-one Wayne Badger for the Dukes was beaten 12-8 by Craig McLaughlin, while number-two Bob Miles lost 12-4 to Scott McKissick. Jeff Bollman dropped a 12-8 decision to Steve Miller and Tom Langenfeld fell 12-1 against Bill Doeckel.

Number-five Steve Knigge lost 12-7 to Kevin Dasso while Brad Gerdes fell 12-4 to D. K. Pierson. Badger and Miles lost 13-11 to McLaughlin and McKissick in the number-one doubles. Bollman and Knigge fell 12-4 versus Miller and Doeckel while Langenfeld and Gerdes dropped a 12-8 verdict against Dasso and Pierson.

Dixon took the frosh-soph meet, however, with a 7-2 advantage. Rick Paisley grabbed a 12-6 win from Shawn Moore at number one while Rocky Franklin fell 12-10 to Herb Schultz and John Sagmoe lost 12-9 to Mark Cook.

At number four, Mike Mazrimas beat Mitch Kopf 13-11 while number-five Bob Bushman edged Marty Bruck 14-12. Brian Bovey won by default at number six. Bill Zetterberg beat Jim Moran 12-2 while Bovey lost 12-2 to Jim Eagle in exhibition play.

Dixon swept the doubles as Paisley and Sagmoe beat Schultz and Cook 12-5, Mazrimas and Franklin duplicated the 12-5 against Kopf and Bruck, while Bovey and Bushman defeated Moran and Mike Potter 12-7.

Murphy won long jump and led a Franklin Center sweep in the pole vault. Rick Baker was the only other winner for the Eagles with a 5:05.9 clocking in the mile. Franklin Center will now travel to Walnut today.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

By 1779 the British navy suffered from a dwindling supply of tall masts for its ships, previously cut from pine forests in Maine. British General MacLean was sent to Penobscot Bay to collect timber. An expedition of 1,000 patriot troops under General Lovell left Boston in July to attack the British, but Lovell lacked sufficient strength and the attack never came off. After a 47-day stalemate, the Americans were frightened off by British reinforcements and a few were eventually court martialled for their negligence. The World Almanac relates.

The Doctor Says: Heart problems may be tachycardia

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am at my wits end and I only hope you can help me. You are the last hope. I am 32 years old and the mother of three boys. I am supposedly in good health, but something is out of whack and I have just about given up on life due to this whatever it is.

For a couple of years now whenever I run, get excited, happy, sad or whatever the situation calls for, or I go up a flight of stairs, and even when I eat and the food starts to digest my heart goes nuts. It gives a big, forceful bang and then it beats so fast afterwards and I almost faint. I get sick to my stomach after it hits me and I feel very tired.

Even if I reach a climax, bang it goes and I get very sick to my stomach, dizzy and faint. It's nearly ruining my life. I have had cardiograms and of course the darned thing never does it then and the doctor says my cardiogram is normal. I have to get up slowly after I have sat or slept for awhile or I get hit with it and almost faint.

I feel as if I am 100 years old. I want to enjoy life but I am afraid to move let alone live as I should at my age.

How much can the heart take of that business before it stops? That's how it feels, it's like there is a second before it beats again after that powerful thrust and then it beats like crazy for a few seconds and then slows down till the next episode. I do not smoke.

DEAR READER — Your story sounds very much like what doctors call paroxysmal tachycardia. These are attacks of sudden, rapid beating of the heart. The onset is usually sudden and they may stop just as suddenly. Some of these attacks can be stopped by breath holding gagging or pressure on one of the arteries of the neck. I do not advise this last procedure for anyone who is not trained in the technique.

There are ways of monitoring a person's heart over a period of time and during daily activity. Individuals with recurrent attacks but never in the doctor's office are sometimes tested in this way. The electrodes are placed on the chest and the person carries a leather case about the size of a large camera case with a small tape recorder in it. The electrocardiogram is recorded on tape for as long as a day. This can then be played back in the doctor's office and he can see what the episodes were that you were having. Once he has documented exactly what the attacks are he can better decide what form of treatment should be used.

Individuals with such attacks need a complete medical examination. These attacks can be caused by many things including an overactive thyroid.

Recurrent attacks can often be controlled with medicines that decrease the irritability of the heart. The choice of the best medicine is often based on identifying which type of rapid heart action is present. There are several different types. That's why it is helpful to document them. If they can't be documented easily and they still occur regularly some of the same medicines can be used anyway, often with considerable success. One of the time honored medicines used for this purpose is Quinidine. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-656: Tommy B., aged 12, has a problem.
"Dr. Crane," he asked, "can you help me with my mother?"
"For I have a chance to take another boy's paper route and make $10 a week."
"But Mom says I'd have to get up early in the morning to deliver my papers, regardless of the weather."
"So she thinks I shouldn't handle a newspaper route."
"But I want to do it, so would you please try to talk her into letting me take this route?"
Bravo, Tommy!
Newspaper boys are the cream of our American crop of youth!
For they obtain almost the only practical education in our famous "Free Enterprise" system.
This economic system has three vital parts, namely:
(1) Production; (2) Merchandising and (3) Credit or collection.
The usual chores a boy or girl handles don't involve that three-fold viewpoint.
And probably 90 per cent of Americans never receive such a broad background as newspaper carriers obtain.
For most people work in only one of those three phases of our economy.
Thus, auto workers and other factory employees at a lathe or machine do a splendid job in "Production."
But they don't try to sell, deliver or collect!
The second phase, namely, "Merchandising," includes advertisers, salesmen, teamsters, deliverymen, packers and all who prepare the manufactured products for use by the consumers.
Finally, the phase in which most Americans are woefully ignorant is No. 3, "Credit" or collection.
These workers range from cashiers at supermarkets and restaurants, to bank tellers, accountants, auditors et al.

One reason for the zooming inflation and approaching bankruptcy of Uncle Sam is the fact the workers in Phase 1 and Phase 2 have little or no concept of balancing books and budgeting!
A newspaper boy, however, gets his papers at wholesale. Then he engages in merchandising them, including recruiting new subscribers, placating irate old ones, and delivering his papers, rain or shine.
But when he operates on the "Little Merchant Plan," he also must faithfully cover his route and collect, after which he deducts the wholesale price he paid, from the total collections each week.
Thus, he realizes the vast difference between "gross" income vs. his own "net" or take-home pay.
Newspaper boys merit college scholarships and should be recruited for state legislatures and Congress when they get older.
For they have firsthand experience with the three-fold nitty-gritty phases of our superb economic system.
Obviously, they must forego a lot of play time, but sacrifices are inherent and essential for a well integrated adult personality.

Besides, it is inflating to his ego to realize he is taking an adult role in life, instead of being a "kept" or "dole" citizen.
Mothers, even if you are wealthy, it is vital that your kiddies learn the true value of money.
That can only develop from sweat, calluses, hours sacrificed from play time, and even tears, for value is purely a psychological thing!
(Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Mellott, Ind., 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets).
